

Image taken from Big and Little, by Christine Dale

The Kea: Also known as the Mountain Parrot, the Kea is an endangered species. Recent studies have proved they are even more intelligent than originally thought. Find out more at: <http://www.nzbirdsonline.org.nz/species/kea>

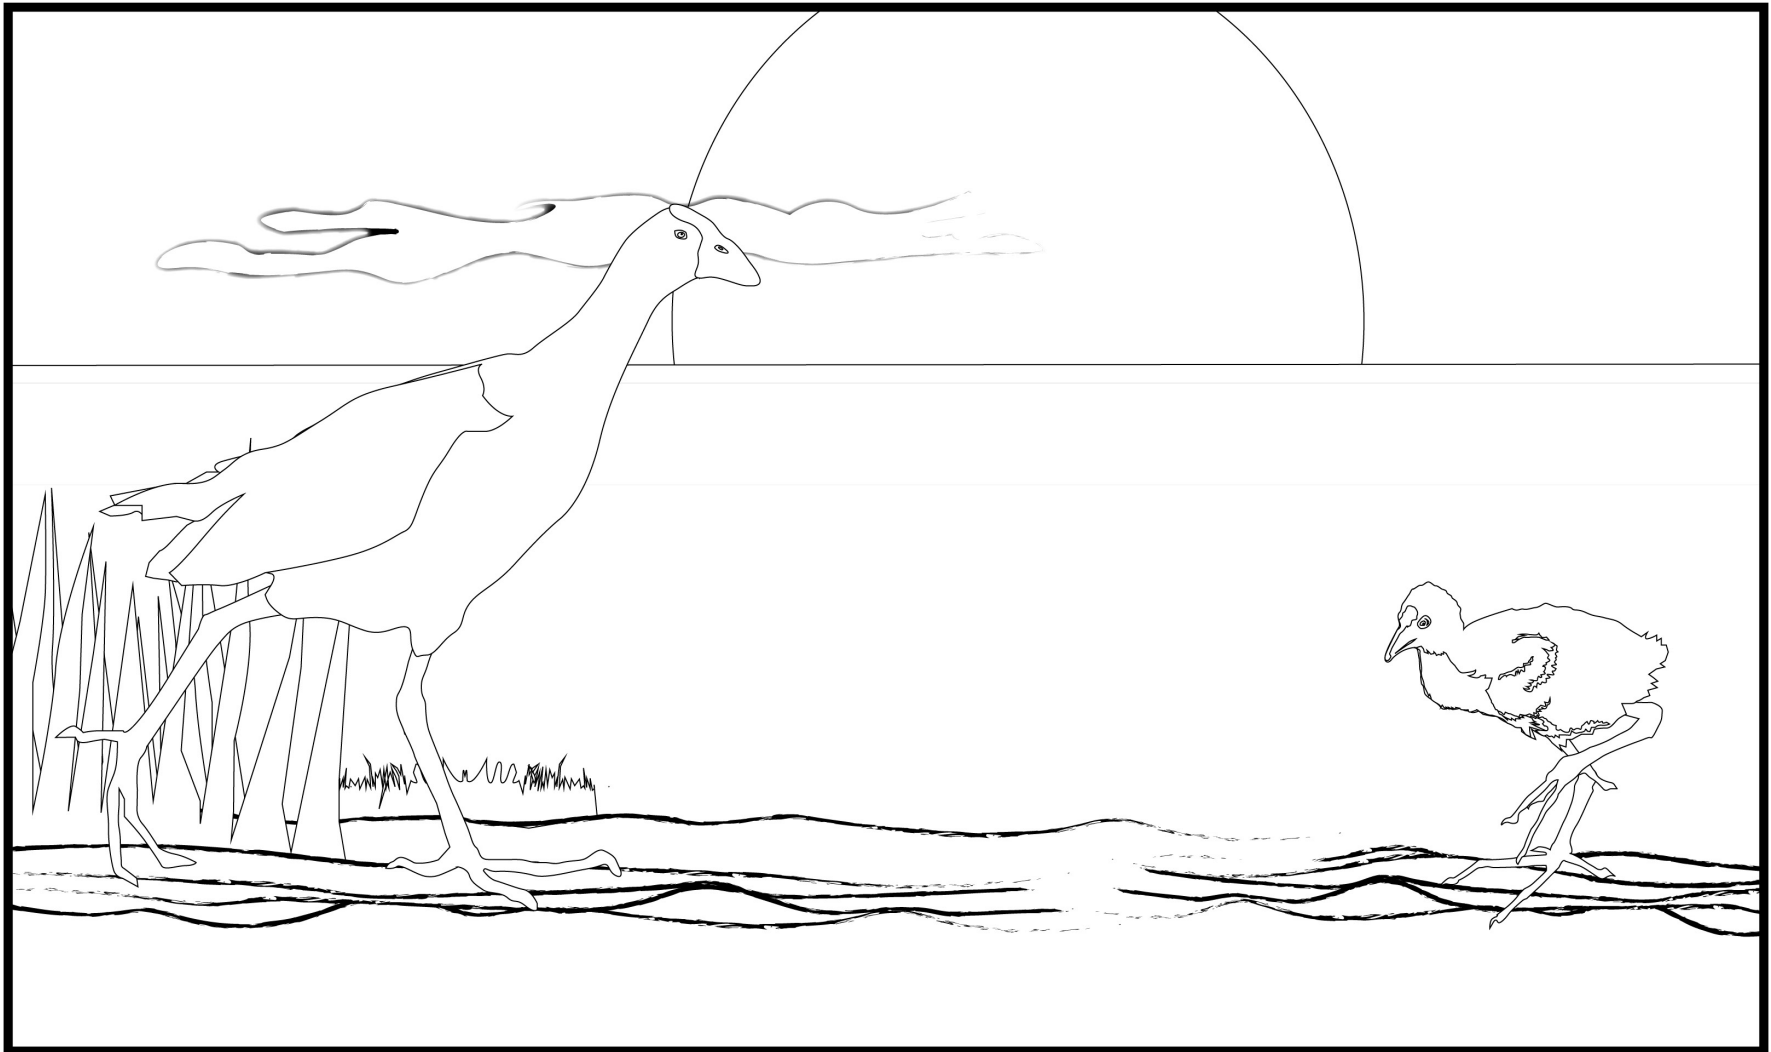

Image taken from Big and Little, by Christine Dale

The Pukeko: The Pukeko is deep blue with black head, wings and back are black with a greenish tinge, under tail is pure white and flicks as they walk, bill and shield are scarlet, eyes red and feet and legs orange-red. Find out more at: <https://birdrescue.org.nz/pukeko/>

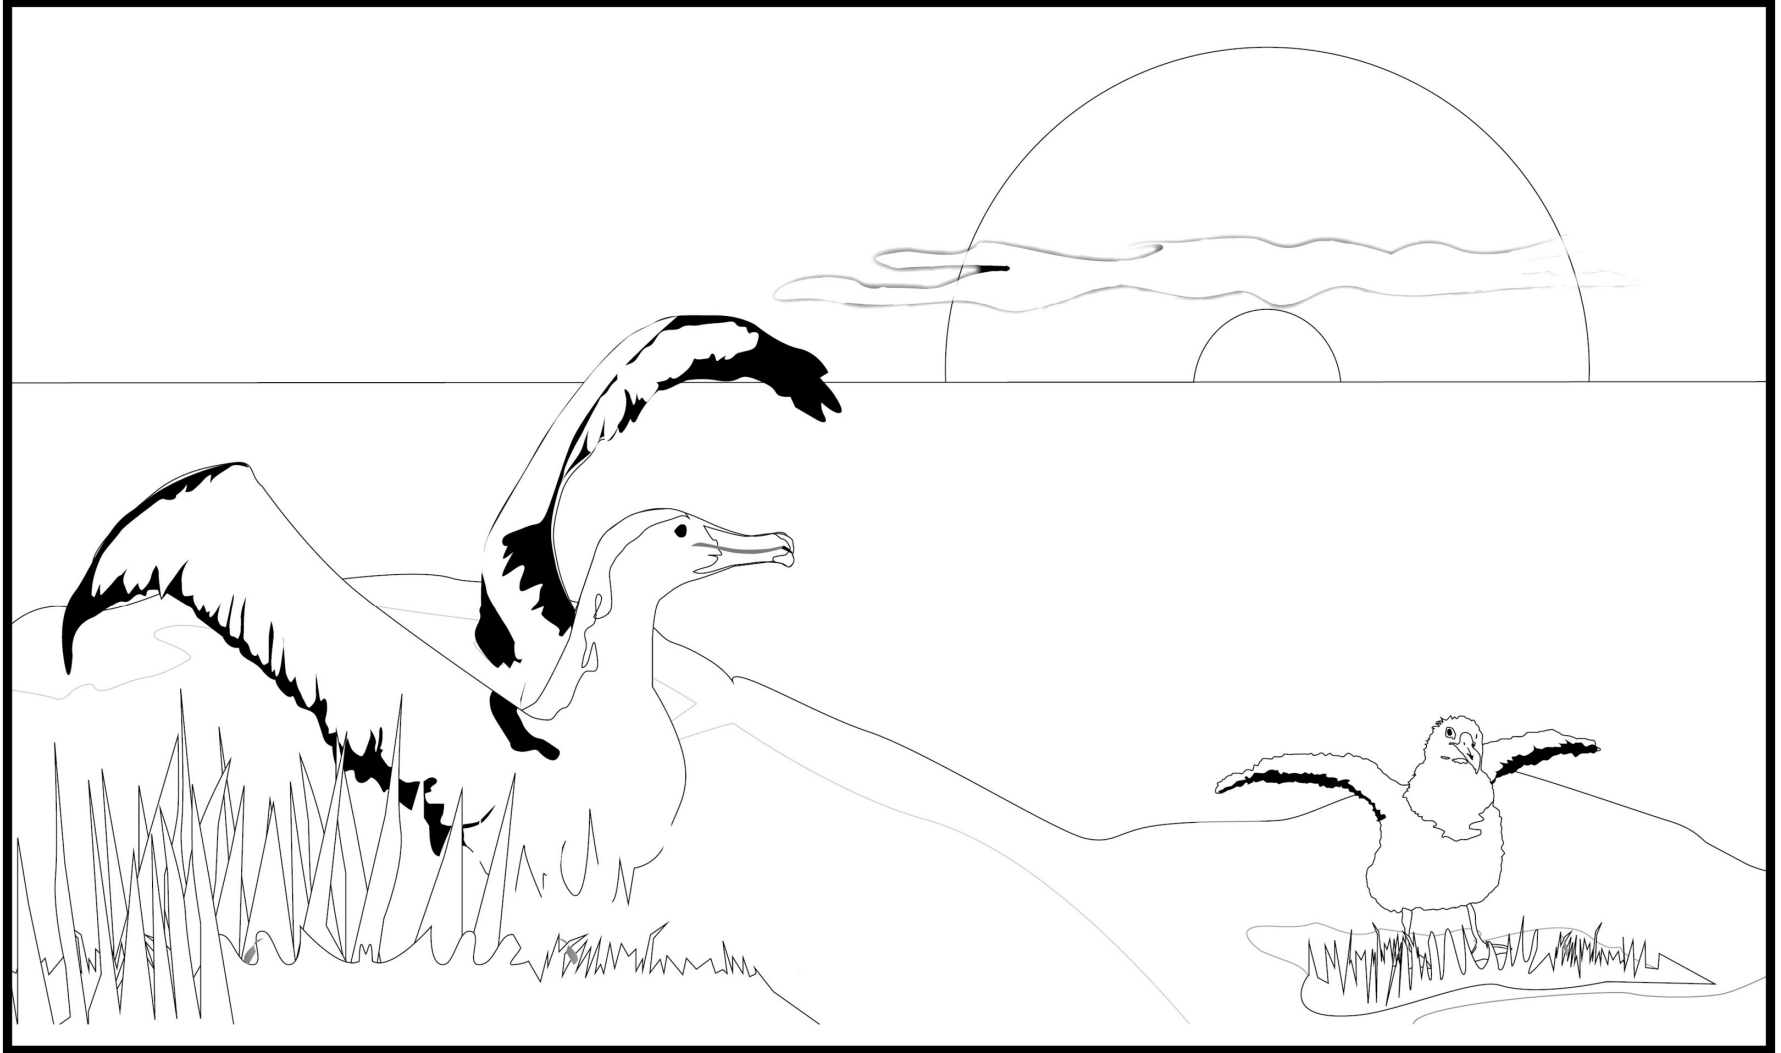

Image taken from Big and Little, by Christine Dale

The Royal Albatross: New Zealand has the only mainland breeding colony in the world. Find out all about them at www.albatross.org.nz

